German Staff Officer Reported Slain in Bucharest

Balkans Anxiety Increases over Death of Major; Suspect Is Held

Former Boxer of "Greek Origin" Said To Have Fired Five Shots Following Quarrel in Cafe

YUGOSLAVIA. Yugoslavia, Jan. 20.—Reports that a German general staff officer had been shot dead in Bucharest deepened Balkan anxiety about as military observers agreed that a so-called Nazi expeditionary force of about 200,000 men was ready to move south, east or west at a moment's notice.

The slain officer was identified in dispatches to Belgrade newspapers as Major Doring. A former professional boxer of "Greek origin" was arrested.

Bucharest police, these reports said, quoted the prisoner as saying he quarreled with the officer in a cafe, followed him to the hotel Ambras and fired five shots into the hotel entrance. The shooting took place only two blocks from the Romanian royal palace, near the German staff headquarters.

Nazi Soldiers Ready

A hint of Nazi military readiness was seen in a diplomatic report from Bucharest that the Nazi command had requested the Rumanian espionage company to allow special lines immediately to Sofia and Athens.

All telephone connection between Yugoslavia and Rumania has been severed and Rumania is reported suddenly to have ordered that no news may leave.

Headquarters for eight German divisions are reported to have been established in Transylvania, near the Yugoslav frontier; in Moldavia, on the Russian frontier; in Oltenia across the Danube river from Bulgaria and in Rumania's oil fields. Numerous anti-aircraft and other separate units also are now positioned in Rumania.

Army of 300,000 Men

By the end of the month, observers believe, the Nazis' Rumanian army will total about 300,000 men. Rumanian reports tell now of streets in Bucharest and other large cities filled with motored equipment of thousands of trucks, armored cars and ambulances parked permanently in side streets, with their drivers billeted close by, ready for quick departure.

In some villages all peasant houses are filled with German soldiers. All Jewish schools in Bucharest have been requisitioned for German canteens and headquarters. Nazi officers are being quartered in the homes and apartments of thousands of Jews.

None Not Surprised By FDR's Address

Axis Policy for Future Fixed by Duce and Fuehrer

Hitler and Mussolini Agree upon What To Do with War Problems

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

BERLIN, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Axis political and military policy for the immediate future was regarded as fixed tonight after a new conference between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

About the details there was the profoundest silence. But DNB, German official news agency, said the two leaders reached "complete accord as regards the views of both concerning all questions."

"The Fuehrer and Il Duce, on the occasion of their meeting in the presence of the foreign ministers of the Axis, had an extensive conversation," the official statement said.

"It came off in the spirit of the heartfelt friendship between the two government chiefs and of the close fighting alliance existing between the German and Italian people."

Discuss Military Problems

Informal quarters said military questions occupied the first part of the conference. They added that Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the Nazi high command, and a high Italian officer were available for advice on technical questions.

The second part of the conference was said to have been concerned with diplomatic questions.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian foreign minister Count Galeazzo Ciano were reported to have aided in this discussion.

Authorized commentators said it was extremely unlikely that there would be any particularly informative announcements concerning the talks. They asserted it wasn't the habit of the Axis powers to tip off an enemy as to their intentions.

British bombers carried out a "successful raid" yesterday on Brati, in the central Albanian sector, a communiqué asserted today, and blasted away at Italian military concentrations and transports. Buildings east of the town were hit, the war bulletin said, "several fires being started."

Greece Intensify Attacks

Despite continuous bad weather, the Greek army was reported to have intensified its attacks north of Klisura, on the central front, preceding its raid with a heavy artillery bombardment of the Italian-held positions.

Then the infantry stormed the Italian lines, breaking through in some sectors, dispatches reported. The operations were described as of particular importance.

Other reports from the front said there was heavy air activity in the central sector, with Greek planes bombing and machine-gunning Italian troops.

Heavy snows and the continued cold were said to have held up operations on the other fronts.

Italian Bomber Brought Down in Sharp Dog Fight

Another Damaged and Raiders Driven Off by the British

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

ATHENS, Jan. 20 (AP)—In a sharp dog fight 10,000 feet above Athens, British war planes shot down one Italian bomber, damaged another and drove off the rest of a raiding formation today.

Thousands of Athenians watched the air battle waged high in the hazy sky against Italian planes directing their attack on Piraeus, the port of Athens.

Most of the bombs splashed into the harbor without damage to shipping facilities and an RAF communiqué said no damage of military consequence resulted.

There were a number of civilian casualties and some homes were reported wrecked in the attack.

Four members of the crew of the bomber shot down descended by parachute.

British Plane Burns

"One of our aircraft crashed on landing and burst into flames," the British said.

Although Athens proper has escaped bombing in the war to date, its airport was attacked Oct. 28 and Piraeus, five miles to the southwest, has been subjected to several air raids.

A Rome radio broadcast shortly after the Greek-Italian conflict started virtually promised Athens immunity from air attacks if Rome were not bombed.

Piraeus is located on the Gulf of Aegina, and has modern quays and piers which accommodate all but the largest ships. It served as the port of ancient Athens.

British bombers carried out a "successful raid" yesterday on Brati, in the central Albanian sector, a communiqué asserted today, and blasted away at Italian military concentrations and transports. Buildings east of the town were hit, the war bulletin said, "several fires being started."

Axist Powers May Form a Coalition In Mediterranean

Expected To Concentrate in Effort To Defeat British

ROME, Jan. 20 (AP)—Usually reliable sources indicated tonight that the outcome of Premier Benito Mussolini's meeting with Adolf Hitler would be concentrated on beating the British in the Mediterranean war area.

Some foreign observers considered a coordinated German-Italian command possible as a result of the extensive conversation concerning the situation announced in a communiqué identical to that issued in Berlin.

May Unite Forces

Virginia Gayda, editorial spokesman of Fascism, mentioned a coalition of forces to stem British successes, and Malta appeared to be the number one objective. Stefani, Italian news agency, said 100 German dive bombers fought "immense devastation" sank a merchantman and damaged the British aircraft carrier Illustrious a third time in ten days at that Mediterranean island yesterday.

Against a coalition of enemy forces, the Axis is opposing a coalition of its forces," Gayda wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia.

But the attempt to bomb Malta and its key port of Valetta into uselessness as a British naval base, and the reinforced Axis efforts in Libya and against Greece do not, Gayda insisted, mean abandonment of a plan to attack Britain herself.

Il Giornale D'Italia reported buzzards and mitter cold were hampering operations in Albania. Italian planes in waves, it continued, bombed the Premet-to-Volano highway yesterday, halting Greek columns and destroying or putting out of use a "good part" of their trucks.

Expect to Silence Malta

"Within a few days, Malta will return to silence as a base of attacks as it was reduced to silence last summer and autumn by the efficient action of the Italian airforce," Stefani added.

The agency said the aircraft carrier Illustrious was "hit several times and the side decked up to the breakwater was shaken apart in several places."

"Shipyards near where the Illustrious was anchored were completely destroyed. An arsenal hit in several sections was devastated.

"A steamer in the harbor was hit squarely in the bow and sank."

Some political circles saw in these reports the first groundwork of a Balkan entente which might include Yugoslavia.

Colonel Donovan's arrival was unpublicized. There were no stories in the newspapers. However, the government press department issued an order banning anti-American articles and cartoons—many of which had been appearing recently.

McCormack Praises Aid to Britain Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic leader of the House, said tonight that legislators who oppose the administration's aid-to-Britain bill are "good men" but "blind to the dangers that confront the country."

The objective of the bill is the preservation of the United States, McCormack said in a speech prepared for the Washington Star's radio forum, broadcast over NBC.

Mrs. Wilda Maffley Lane, of Cumberland, was granted an absolute divorce from her husband, Loyal Lane, in a decree signed yesterday in circuit court by Associate Judge William A. Huston.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane were married in Winchester, Va., January 26, 1940, and separated June 1, 1940. Mrs. Lane was granted the right to resume her maiden name, Wilda Maffley. Julius E. Schindler was attorney for Mrs. Lane.

away in the two lifeboats about 500 miles off Ireland.

The two boats became separated on the heaving seas.

Chant Death Songs

First to go were four East Indian seafarers, least accustomed to the North Atlantic weather. They drank salt water, the survivors said, then lay in the bottom of the boat and chanted native death songs before collapsing.

The cook went mad, the survivors stated, and pulled the plugs from the bottom of the boat, allowing the sea to spout in. Then he leaped overboard. His mates pulled him back into the boat, while others rammed the plugs back in place. He died shortly afterward.

Victims Buried at Sea

The victims were buried with ceremony at sea. Each night after some had died, Chief Officer George Robinson, one of the survivors brought here, read brief prayers for them and committed the bodies to the Atlantic.

Some of the derelict group saw mirages as they grew weaker.

"It's hard to think about it," said the twenty-eight-year-old chief officer laconically as he rested in a hospital. His condition was the worst of the four.

The men said the single torpedo struck the Carlton amidships. She sank within six minutes.

Garner Swears in

Jones, informed of the situation, said he would be glad to part with the topper because someone else had given him one and he didn't need it anyway.

Has Trouble with Hat

The hat was too small, however, and fell off three times, once in church where Garner complained audibly because the ushers kept the door open too long and let a cold draft blow on him.

The door had been opened to let in what Garner described succinctly as "the Roosevelt tribe."

Returning to the White House after the church services, Garner had more trouble with the topper. When he and Wallace arrived at the capitol, the incoming vice-president consulted Garner about etiquette—should they wear the silk toppers out onto the platform. Garner, whose hat had just popped off again, said no, they could carry them. And carry them they did.

Ceremony Is Brief

There was not much fanfare to the vice-presidential inaugural ceremony. The time arrived, shortly after noon, the president had come upon the platform. Wallace and Garner stepped forth. Garner read the oath. Wallace answered "I do" and both retired to give way to the main show.

When a cheer greeted the president's statement of his oath, Garner, who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic presidential nomination last summer, beamed broadly. As the president read his inaugural address, however, the Texan maintained a serious mein. Wallace sitting at Garner's left, listened intently.

When the president had completed his address, Wallace and Garner stepped forward to shake hands. It was then, for the third time during the day, that Mr. Roosevelt leaned over and whispered in Garner's ear. The gist of this message was said to have been "goodbye, Jack. I'll miss you."

That was the parting between the man who swung the necessary votes in 1932 to assure the president's first nomination and who later silently but actively opposed the third term nomination.

Axis Policy for

demands from any quarters and, if strong British forces show up in the Mediterranean, they must expect to attract German attention.

Since the meetings between the Fuehrer and Il Duce always cover a lot of ground, it may be taken for granted that their talks included President Roosevelt's message to Congress, Secretary of State Hull's testimony before the House Foreign Affairs committee, U. S. lend-lease legislation and statements by other American statesmen such as Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to London.

It looks also as though the conference was held over for today to await a full report on the reconciliation meeting last Friday between French Chief of State Petain and his former vice-premier and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval.

Berlin sources still had only extraordinary reserved comment to-night. Even the place of the meeting was not disclosed.

The objective of the bill is the preservation of the United States, McCormack said in a speech prepared for the Washington Star's radio forum, broadcast over NBC.

trated Italian positions in Ethiopia. One was said even to have fired a signal pistol near an Italian base to guide British bombers to it.

Officials Silent

Authorized British quarters kept silent on the size of the rebel movement, but one neutral military source placed the number at between 30,000 and 80,000 men. They are supplied with British guns.

It was recalled that undersecretary of foreign affairs R. A. Butler told the House of Commons Dec. 18 the government's policy was to extend all possible assistance to the dethroned Ethiopian emperor and to Ethiopians "willing to fight for freedom."

British military sources said the ejection of the Italians from Kassala "ended all chances" of a Fascist invasion against Khartoum, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and the Nile cotton-growing region.

Two Italian divisions, including two Blackshirt battalions, were routed and suffered 2,000 casualties in the operations around Kassala, these quarters said.

British intelligence officers were providing "continuous and valuable" service in arousing the Ethiopians. Among them are British army officers.

Authoritative military circles declared the British occupation of Kassala, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan north of the Ethiopian border, was a threat to continued Italian domination over the former kingdom of Haile Selassie.

taking the oath on the two previous occasions:

Without pausing, the president drove back to the White House, grinning and waving to the crowds along the way. Then a little later, he started to cover the subject of the nation's foreign perils in his recent speeches. So today's address was largely what some called a lesson in democracy.

It was attended by one scary little incident. A photographer's flash bulb exploded with a sharp, loud pop. It took the president aback and he stopped in mid-sentence, but quickly resumed.

Sidewalks Jammed

Pennsylvania avenue sidewalks were jammed with folks waiting to see the official cars go by, and later the inaugural parade, which emphasized the great problem of the moment: building up America's defenses. This procession was devoted almost entirely to military units.

The plaza crowd cheered briefly as the president appeared in the inaugural stand, leaning upon the arm of his son James, the latter wearing his brilliant marine officer's uniform.

The chief executive's face was somber, but as he turned and faced the crowd, the lines about his mouth relaxed, and the famous Roosevelt smile was in full evidence.

Drums rumbled and trumpets flourished and then "Hail to the Chief" resounded from the marine band.

Garner gave the oath to Wallace, who answered with a brisk "I do," there was another fanfare from the band and Chief Justice Hughes stepped forward. He read the oath to the chief executive and Mr. Roosevelt repeated it after him softly and with obvious deliberation:

Still Have Far To Go

"We know that we still have far to go," he said; "that we must more greatly build the security and the opportunity and the knowledge of every citizen, in the measure that must be kept informed and educated by the resources and the capacity of the land.

"But it is not enough to achieve these purposes alone. It is not enough to clothe and feed the body of this nation, and instruct and inform its mind. For there is also the spirit. And of the three, the greatest is the spirit."

"Without the body and mind, as all men know, the nation could not live."

"But if the spirit of America were killed, even though the nation's body and mind, constricted in an alien world, lived on, the America we know would have perished."

And, after stating the "strong purpose" of his administration to be the protection and perpetuation of democracy, he swung swiftly to his conclusion.

"For we this muster the spirit of America, and the faith of America," he said.

We Do Not Retreat!

"We do not retreat, we are not content to stand still. As Americans, we go forward, in the service of our country, by the will of God."

The only really loud ovation set in then, but it was cut short by the marine band, playing the "Star Spangled Banner." When that was over, the applause set in again. Mr. Roosevelt, after shaking hands with those about him, turned, grinned and waved his silk hat at the multitude. Then he returned to the White House, smiling and waving to the crowds along the way.

Luncheon at White House

At the executive mansion, there was a buffet luncheon for 1,000 guests. Some had difficulty getting even near the White House, the crowds were so thick. Silk-hatted personages abandoned their automobiles several blocks away and trudged the remainder of the distance. Mr. Roosevelt sat throughout the luncheon in the red room, with his beaming mother, and Frederick A. Delano, an uncle.

From time to time groups of the guests were ushered in for a brief chat.

Meanwhile, the army was putting on a show overhead, squadrons of four-motored and two-motored bombers and pursuit planes roared over the city in wedge formation.

Then the parade began. Mr. Roosevelt watched it from a special reviewing stand in front of the White House.

Wright Redraws the World And Makes It Bombproof

By JOHN SELBY

Associated Press Arts Editor
NEW YORK. — Frank Lloyd Wright designed his ideal community for better living, and when he finished he decided it would be bomb-proof.

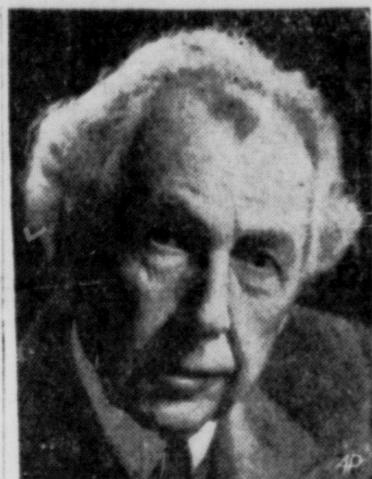

The decentralization that makes the community ideal for living, Wright explains, also makes it bomb-proof. To damage "Broadacres," which is Wright's name for his brainchild, would require more bombs than the result would justify.

"Broadacres" exists at the moment only in Wright's agile 71-year-old mind, and in the form of a 12-foot-square model which recently was shown at New York's Museum of Modern Art, together with hundreds of smaller models and drawings and photographs which gave the most comprehensive summary of the Wright philosophy and architecture New York has had.

The American Problem Clarified by Kennedy

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, retiring ambassador to the Court of St. James's, deserves high praise for the manner in which he is clarifying the relationship of this nation to the war emergency and the responsibilities faced. He appears to have grasped fully the attitude of a great majority of the American people.

With respect to that, he notes the growing conflict in the minds of Americans over two possible courses of action—giving aid to Britain in the interests of self protection and staying out of the war. Many cannot reconcile the two, but Kennedy believes it not only possible that we can do both but necessary.

We should not, as Kennedy says, give this aid beyond the absolute minimum for our own protection. That is something not easily determined, but it can be determined and should be, as he says, by the president, the Congress and our army and navy experts. But, as he also says, since the American people decidedly do not wish to enter this war, "we must not go to the point where war becomes inevitable." His formula here is a bit different in description, although the same in basis, as that of Mr. Willkie, who believes the aid should be halted only before the point that would "compel" Germany to declare war upon us.

Mr. Kennedy believes that Britain should make available to us all its assets we can use, that after these are used up, we should make outright gifts rather than to depend upon loans, which he says would not likely be repaid. One, of course, cannot have one's cake and eat it too.

The retiring ambassador firmly believes we shall not have to go to war unless attacked and deprecates the chances of that in view of the risks faced by any attacker, particularly the problem faced after flying over the oceans. As to the facts and possibilities are sifted, it does appear that many are becoming victims of an unreasoning fear on this score at least as to the time portion.

As to that Kennedy correctly advises that we must not lose confidence in ourselves and in the judgment of our leaders and experts, although keeping in sight the important fact that we are not now prepared to fight any war. Noting that war declarations are now outmoded, that war will be waged by the totalitarian powers only when it suits them to do so, he deprecates any idea that if war is declared we shall not have to use our manpower. That may sound feasible now, he cautions, but it might not sound so six months hence. It is his opinion that we must be either all the way in or all the way out.

While we are striving to preserve our ideals, our way of life, against a danger of totalitarianism, Kennedy makes a strong point, which this newspaper has frequently noted, that if we should plunge into the conflict too soon and become exhausted along with the rest of the world while Russia remains aloof and grows stronger, we then face the greater danger of a world spread of communistic government.

As for blank checks, we should, as Kennedy advises, be wary. Common sense, he says, requires that "there must be the most complete clarification of American aims in this conflict before we take the fatal step." Therefore, we should be cautious about surrendering our rights in the Lend-Lease measure. While a believer in the need of centralized authority in great emergency, nevertheless he is "unable to agree with the proponents of this bill that it has yet been shown that we face such immediate danger as to justify this surrender of the authority and responsibility of Congress." He believes that after the hearings have been completed on it, "there will be revealed less drastic ways of meeting the problems of adequate authority for the president." He is dead right about that.

Kennedy has stated the obvious in declaring that a just peace at this time does not seem to be "in the cards." But he correctly advises against all intolerance in the discussion of the grave war problem. We should all be careful of unwarranted name-calling, and refrain from berating anybody as an "apeaser" in any sincere, honest and patriotic effort to do the right thing. Let us take it for granted that all participants in the discussions and debates have the purest motives, but, as heretofore noted in these columns, let the course be objective rather than subjective, to the end that the right course shall be defined and realized. We must, as Kennedy says, "hold a free and open discussion, and maintain tolerance with those with whom we disagree," because "no one group or one class can possibly bear the burden of sacrifice which must be borne by every man, woman and child, rich and poor alike," even if "our present program is the limit." And yet, as he says, we must all recognize that "no burden is too great a price to pay for the safety of our beloved country."

The Kennedy has done a great national service in thus clarifying this problem. It is to be hoped he will be heard from again.

Local Distribution Of Automobile Tags

ONE of the questions on which a poll is being taken jointly by the Western Maryland Motor Club and the Automobile Club of Maryland is whether automobile licensing bureaus shall be set up at county seats, as has been recommended to the legislature by the state Legislative council. At present, the licensing of all motor vehicles in the state is handled at the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles in Baltimore.

In behalf of the proposal it is stated that licensing fees paid by motorists justify consideration of their convenience. "Considerable delay and inconvenience are caused motorists living outside of Baltimore," it is set forth, "through the necessity of their coming to Baltimore or corresponding with officials in Baltimore for the purpose of straightening out titles and licenses. Especially is this true now that numerous towns throughout the state levy automobile personal property taxes which must be paid at county seats before tags will be licensed by the commissioner of motor vehicles. This entails two transactions at different points and the motorist is often caught between the two."

On the other hand it is argued that the proposal "would increase expenses by setting up and maintaining twenty-three branch offices, personnel, etc., with extensive bookkeeping and duplication of accounting system, resulting in confusion and greater chance of loss of revenue. A special staff of auditors would have to be employed," it is further stated, "to make at least a weekly check-up on each branch. Daily reports as now compiled would not be available. The central office would not have up-to-date records on the ownership of tags which is now available to all police officials twenty-four hours a day. At the present time tags can be procured for ten cents postage, and it is not necessary to drive to the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles or any branch offices."

As heretofore pointed out in this newspaper, the proposal by the Legislative council is that the ten-cent fee remain as payment for the services of the county treasurers in handling the tag business. But this newspaper raised the question as to how many motorists would like to exchange the privilege of merely filling out a brief form and mailing a check through the mails, and having their plates delivered at their home, for the necessity of standing in line at the county treasurer's office.

Certainly if the branch offices should be instituted, the mailing privilege should obtain, and at no additional cost to the motorist over what is now charge him. So far as the News knows, that privilege is withheld in the suggested bill authorizing the branch offices. Thus the item of increased overall costs comes up and the poll so far taken by the motor clubs indicates a general protest against anything of that kind in proposals affecting motorists in the interests of state economy and tax requirements.

A Smart Detective and His Wife Put Their Heads Together To Track Down Two Lost Diamonds

By JAY BURTON

"There ought to be a law against it!" Tony O'Malley grumbled, flinging down the sports final of the selfsame newspaper for which he labored as a self-confessed star reporter. Kitty O'Malley, nee Carlton, looked from the neat kitchenette at her practically new husband with concern.

"A law against what, darling?" she asked. "Your favorite team losing again?" She put away the last of the cleansed dinner dishes in the cupboard while Tony stewed and made grumbling noises, and then she took off her crisp apron and joined him in the living room. He looked grim.

"I've had a tough day, Kitty," he admitted. "Sometimes I wonder why I keep on in this messy business! I hate to have to put the rap on old friends!"

"What did Roarke put you on today?" she asked. "You sound as though he assigned you to dig through the city dump in search of the missing papers that will save the heroine!"

"It's just as bad!" Tony opined in disgust. "If it was anybody else acrossness. Kitty tossed his hat to him.

"I've earned a vacation from home and fireside, my fine lad," she stated with firmness. "Besides, I have a hunch we can get a fresh lead on this story for you and have a little light entertainment at the same time!" Tony shrugged and got up. He knew it.

Twenty minutes later, by a stroke of fortune, they found themselves at the same table with Milo Burgess at the Town Club. Burgess was an old acquaintance of Tony's too, it seemed. Tony knew plenty of odd characters! Kitty and Burgess watched Tony and Burgess' companion dance around the tiny floor.

"I'm sorry to hear about your losing some very valuable jewelry the other night, Mr. Burgess," she observed sincerely. Burgess colored slightly.

"Your husband seemed to be rather bitter about the business this afternoon down at the office of the district attorney, Mrs. O'Malley," he returned. "I can understand that. I knew the two girls fairly well, too, you understand. But a loss of thousands isn't to be sneezed at, even by me!"

"But what became of the rings?" Kitty pursued with curiosity. "Tony says that they haven't turned up in any of the pawnshops, and the girls aren't the kind who would be likely to know any fences—or steal anything either!"

"All I know is that I invited the girls to accompany me to another place when the Town Club show was over," Burgess recalled defensively. "They came up to my place for a nightcap before I put them in a cab and sent them home. I have a habit of removing the rings and

"You were certain you had the putting them on the library table when I get home at night."

"rings when you left here that night."

mited. "I had a little chat with a Mr. Connerton, who knows all about bartending here and also Mr. Burgess, who comes in here often!"

"So?" Tony stated with a quirked eyebrow. Kitty dug one small hand into the depths of her handbag and tumbled several objects upon the table. Tony stared.

One object was the detective badge she still retained from her last position as special operative for Kendrik, chief agent of the area. The other two were large diamond solitaires, set in heavy platinum, masculine style.

"You newshawks aren't objective enough, Tony!" she smiled at him, pushing the rings around with her index finger. "You need another school of thought!" Tony took her hand. "It Happened By Accident

"You'll have to excuse me," she said. "I haven't had much experience in this kind of thing. It leaves me cold."

She is very pleasant to gaze upon though. Green eyes. Brown hair swooped up on her forehead. Fur coat tossed nonchalantly about her shoulders. No hat.

It seems she learned to fly "just by accident." Became a plane dealer "by accident" too. She was working as service manager for a New York manufacturing concern five years ago when a girl friend asked her to come for a ride in a plane she kept in a New Jersey field.

"Who am I to refuse?" asked Helen. So she went. Up in the air the friend offered to let her take the stick for awhile. So she tried that too—and was "sold." The friend gave her her first five hours in the air and a pilot instructor taught her to take off and land.

For Sky Commuters

Then a friend asked her advice on what plane to buy. She steered him into the agency of the ship she was flying and was instrumental in making a sale. That gave her an idea. She approached the New York distributor of a light plane (Luscombe) and got a job selling on commission in his Park Avenue showroom. From there she progressed to the dealership she now holds in Perth Amboy and has chalked up 25 sales since March.

She sells chiefly to people who have never piloted a ship, but who want one for pleasure, for commuting from country places to New York or for business trips.

"SMOKING OUT" THE FACTS about nicotine. Experts, chemists—and intricate laboratory machines—analyze the smoke of 5 of the largest-selling brands...find that the smoke of slower-burning Camels contains 28% less nicotine than the average of the other brands tested—less than any of them!

FOR many a year your taste and your tongue told you there was something distinctive about Camels...something you just couldn't seem to find in any other cigarette.

Then scientific research told you Camels were slower-burning. You learned that this slower way of burning meant more mildness, more coolness, and more flavor in the smoke.

Now, new tests—impartial laboratory tests of the smoke itself—confirm still another advantage of Camel's slower burning: Less nicotine in the smoke.

Less than any of the four other largest-selling brands tested—28% less than the average!

And when independent laboratory tests reveal such a distinct advantage for one brand of cigarettes over all the others tested—that's worth your looking into—right now!

Try the slower-burning cigarette...try Camels. Compare them...compare them by smoking them. The smoke's the thing!

Young and Old Turn to Skating As Real Winter Weather Arrives

With outdoor sports much limited this season because of the lack of snow, many residents of Cumberland, their weekend guests and other visitors are holding a number of skating parties and other special features at local skating rinks when "Jack Frost" permits.

Several rink owners have installed lights, making night skating a popular "pastime." Particularly the younger set is having the time of their lives planning skating parties which often end in a gala evening of dancing and at home "get-togethers" with a fireside forming an ideal setting for roasting marshmallows.

But this is not limited to the younger set. On larger rinks their elders can be seen enjoying this sport. Lately on nearby rinks games of tag are being played even by the grown-ups and in quite a few cases the youngsters may well learn tricky skating from the older and more experienced figure skaters.

PATTERN 9640

"Carefree" might be the title of this dress—it's so jaunty and young! You'll find Pattern 9640 by Marian Martin quick to make, too, with that smart button-opening that lets you handle it in a flat-spread piece. A new note of the season is the wide, waist-slimming inset band—so neat and trim. The bodice softly blouses above the band, held in by darts of gathers at the waist and by gathering below the deep, youthful yoke that goes straight across the front. You may choose either a high-round neckline or cut a square shape. Contrast for the yoke, waist-girdle and optional pockets would give a colorful effect.

Hollywood columnists have been guessing that romance is springing up between lovely Lana Turner, movie star, and Singer Tony Martin. This picture, taken in a Hollywood night spot, would seem to indicate that the columnists may be right.

Holiday Money Goes for Drink

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We looked forward to such a happy Christmas. My husband, who had been out of regular work for the past two years, finally got back his old job which he had lost through heavy drinking. The men in the shop, though they knew why he lost his job two years ago, insisted on treating him. He came home to us Christmas eve jobless, drunk, every cent of his money gone.

I wish we could have some legislation put across where a wife could sue men who treat an alcoholic to liquor. Wives have to stand having a jobless inebriate on their hands while these false friends go merrily on. How can I get in touch with Alcoholics Anonymous which you often recommend in your column?

Mrs. J. H. Pike, 13 Mary street, this city, and Mrs. Olive Foley Keyser, W. Va. are in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Lottie Richards, 1211 Virginia avenue, is in Washington, D. C. for several days.

Mrs. M. H. Sloan, 607 Washington street, is ill at her home.

Mrs. Margaret Frampton, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Metzger, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Engle, Johnstown, Pa., were here to attend the wedding of Miss Catherine Rank and Robert Bast, Friday.

Mrs. Laura B. Fuller, 221 Baltimore street, has gone to Miami, Fla. for a couple of months.

Mrs. Joseph H. Lippold, Avirett Avenue, is visiting her daughter, Virginia in Baltimore. They attended the inauguration in Washington, yesterday.

Mrs. Charles C. Shriner, Town Creek, is a patient at the Allegany hospital, where she underwent an operation Saturday.

Mrs. John R. Marquette, this city, is in Washington, D. C.

At the first snuffle, sneeze or sign of nasal irritation —put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing. Because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to help your natural defenses against colds in the nose and upper throat where most colds start.

NOTE: If by chance you have a head cold, a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up both sides of the nose should quickly relieve misery. It helps soothe irritation, shrink swollen membranes and clear out mucus-clogged nasal passages. As a result it makes breathing freer and easier and brings you comfort.

seems to me it would be a good idea to drop some of the superfluous laws from our statute books—we're said to have over a thousand of them—and slip one in, forbidding the treating of a confirmed alcoholic trying to get on his feet.

Alcoholics Anonymous is an organization which strives to keep its work and those who belong to its various chapters strictly anonymous. If you will send me a three-cent, stamped, self-addressed envelope I will give you the name of the official who will put you in touch with the chapter in your vicinity. ### Objects to Dances

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17 years old and for about three months went "steady" with a boy of 22. We thought a lot of each other, but I'm likely to go any place to dance. I met him at one of these dance-halls, but since then he has said that it isn't the proper place for me to go. He offered to take me to a better class of dances, but has never done so.

I went to one of the dances he objected to, without him, and when he found out about it he stopped coming to see me and has started going out with another girl. He couldn't stop caring for me so quickly, as he even proposed to me, but I didn't take it seriously. The other girl smokes and drinks, neither of which he or I do.

I want to get him back, and have even given up going to these dances. If I could only have a long talk with him just to find out why he broke up with me! Would it be all right to phone him? Or should I forget all about him?

WONDERING

I can never find it in my heart to scold a girl who has dance music in her toes, if she goes to dance places that aren't strictly first class. While I can't be severe with her, I want to point out that it's not a sensible thing for a girl like you who neither smokes nor drinks to be seen in such places. You met the young man there, but after he got interested in you and proposed, he objected to your frequenting this type of dance-hall. As you're only 17 years of age, with the whole of life before you, I hope in future you're going to be more careful. It would be all right for you to call him on the phone.

PARENTS DISAPPROVE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy of 18 years. There's a certain girl of 16 with whom I'm very much in love, and she is with me too. We used to play together when we were kids. We've been going together about nine months and have dated each other several times. But we have to do it on the sly, as our parents don't approve of it. My mother thinks she's not my type.

Someone told me recently that another boy is also going with her. He lives in another city. She and I go to the same college together. What shall I do? Break up with her, or make her forget the other boy. He's about 25.

DISTRACTED

It's always a question in my mind

if these absolute parental taboos with him and say, "I like you well work out the way they're intended, enough, but I can't stand your petting." This might be an invaluable lesson to such a boy and show him that not all girls are "mushy."

Takes Our Former Girl Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past two years I have been going "steady" with a young man, and we are planning to be married in the spring. Once in a while he takes out a certain girl who used to work in the same office with him. This rather upsets me, and he gives as his reason that he wants to find out whether he really loves me or not. It seems to me when a man declares his love for a girl and expects to marry her that he ought to know what he's doing. He says if I get so worked up over these dates, he won't tell me about them in the future.

Would it be better to ask him to make a choice between this other girl and me, or just let matters drift along?

DISCOURAGED.

For an engaged man to take out another girl just to test his affection for his fiancee strikes me as pretty indifferent lovemaking. You're only human to feel as you do about it, and I'm sorry that this had to happen to you. However, try not to show him how deeply it hurts.

If your fiancee is drifting toward this other girl, there really isn't anything to be done. But, be a good sport, and save your face by taking an interest in someone else. Men sometimes have these vague impulses, then come back as birds do, when you leave the cage door open.

Relief At Last
For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germs laden sputum. And it's sure to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beeswax woodcresote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly relieves the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

Text of Roosevelt's Address as Delivered to the Nation Yesterday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Text of President Roosevelt's inaugural address:

On each national day of inauguration since 1789, the people have renewed their sense of dedication to the United States.

In Washington's day the task of the people was to create and weld together a nation.

Lincoln's day the task of the people was to preserve that nation from disruption from within.

In this day the task of the people is to save that nation and its institutions from disruption from without.

To us there has come a time in the midst of swift happenings, to pause for a moment and take stock—to recall what our place in history has been, and to rediscover what we are and what we may be. If we do not, we risk the real peril of inaction.

Lives of nations are determined not by the count of years, but by the lifetime of the human spirit. The life of a man is three-score years and ten: A little more, a little less. The life of a nation is the fullness of the measure of its will to live.

Disagrees With Other Views

There are men who doubt that democracy, as a form of government and a frame of life, is limited or measured by a kind of mystical and artificial fate—that, for some unexplained reason, tyranny and slavery have become the surging wave of the future—and that freedom is an ebbing tide.

But we Americans know that this is not true.

Eight years ago, when the life of this republic seemed frozen by a fatalistic terror, we proved that this was not true. We were in the midst of shock—but we acted quickly, boldly, decisively.

These later years have been living years—fruitful years for the people of this democracy. For they have brought to us greater security and, I hope, a better understanding that life's ideals are to be measured not by other than material things.

Most vital to our present and our future is this experience of a democracy which successfully survived crisis at home, put away many evil things, built new structures on enduring lines; and, through it all, maintained the fact of its democracy.

For action has been taken within the three-way framework of the constitution of the United States. The coordinate branches of the government continue freely to function. The Bill of Rights remains inviolate. The freedom of elections is wholly maintained. Prophets of the downfall of American democracy have seen their dire predictions come to naught.

Democracy Is Not Dying

Democracy is not dying. We know it, because we have seen it revive—and grow.

We know it cannot die—because it is built on the unhampered initiative of individual men and women joined together in a common enterprise—an enterprise undertaken and carried through by the free expression of a free majority.

We know it because democracy alone, of all forms of government, enlists the full force of men's enlightened will.

We know it because democracy alone has constructed an unlimited civilization capable of infinite progress in the improvement of human life.

We know it because if we look below the surface, we see it still spreading on every continent—for it is the most humane, the most advanced, and in the end the most unconquerable of all forms of human society.

A nation, like a person has a body—a body that must be fed and clothed and housed, invigorated and rested, in a manner that measures up to the objectives of time.

A nation, like a person, has a mind—a mind that must be kept informed and alert, that must know itself, that understands the hopes and the needs of its neighbors—all the other nations that live within the narrowing circle of the world.

And a nation, like a person, has something deeper, something more permanent, something larger than the sum of all its parts. It is that something which matters most of its future—which calls for the most sacred guarding of its present.

It is a thing for which we find it difficult—even impossible—to hit upon a single, simple word.

It's Faith of America

And yet we all understand what it is—the spirit—the faith of America. It is the product of centuries. It was born in the multitudes of those who came from many lands—some of high degree, but mostly plain people—who sought here, early and late to find freedom more freely.

The democratic aspiration is no mere recent phase in human history. It is human history. It permeated the ancient life of early peoples. It blazed anew in the middle ages. It was written in Magna Carta.

In the Americas its impact has been irresistible. America has been the new world in all tongues, to all peoples, not because this continent was a new-found land, but because all those who came here believed they could create upon this continent a new life—a life that should be new in freedom.

Written Into All Facts

Its vitality was written into our own Mayflower compact, into the Declaration of Independence, into the constitution of the United States, into the Gettysburg address.

Those who first came here to carry out the longings of their spirit and the millions who followed, and the stock that sprang from them—all have moved forward constantly and consistently toward an ideal which in itself has gained stature and clarity with each generation.

The hopes of the republic cannot forever tolerate either undeserved poverty or self-serving wealth.

We know that we still have far to go; that we must more greatly build the security and the opportunity and the knowledge of every

West opened his fourth-best heart, and South went to work. He took that trick with his heart Q, and could count eight positive tricks. A bit of juggling was nec-

Things were developing just as South desired. He took the spade with his A, and read West as having still the spade Q, heart 5 and two diamonds. East the spade 9 and three diamonds to the K-Q. Dummy held now the high card in hearts, spade J and two diamonds. South threw West in then with the spade 6 to the Q. West couldn't lead his heart to dummy's good 10, so led the diamond 8. East put on the Q. South ducked with the 9 and East had to come to his A-J with a diamond, giving him the last two tricks.

Vulnerable Hands Are Easy Prey to Skin Disease Germ

Exposed Parts of the Body Are Often Affected in Different Ways

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Skin disease naturally affects the exposed parts of the body more often and in a different way from any other part of the skin. Sunburn and germs can attack the hands and face without encountering the defenses of clothing and, of course, these parts of the skin are subject to the same diseases as the rest. The hands are more vulnerable than the skin of the face because they are always poking into danger spots where the skin may be broken or cut. The hands are also more likely to be affected by dermatitis due to soap. The kinds of skin eruptions on the hands have been described under eight headings, which we will review.

Erythema

Redness, or erythema, of the skin of the hands is usually due to a dermatitis of some kind. In most instances it is a contact dermatitis. Many are due to medicines that are put on the hands, others are due to occupational exposure to irritating chemicals. Other forms of erythema on the hands are due to sun rays, X-rays or erysipelas-like eruptions.

Macules, or red spots, on the hands usually come from drug eruptions (antibiotics or barbiturates) or chronic infections and sometimes chilblains show in this fashion.

Papules, or lumps, are in most instances due to scabies or the itch. The best treatment for the itch is the Danish twenty-four hour treatment.

Cleansing bath, soap and brush. Dry thoroughly.

Rub carefully with ointment whole body except scalp and face. Ointment must cover all skin, but hard rubbing is neither required nor desirable.

Wait fifteen minutes to give ointment time to get into the skin, then go to bed.

In twenty-four hours, cleansing bath and fresh underclothing. Sterilize all clothing coming in contact with skin, preferably by boiling. This includes both bed and body clothing.

Do not repeat treatment without instructions.

Every other member of the family who itches should be examined.

Vesicles, or blisters, may also be due to the itch or to pustular infections or plant contacts (primrose dermatitis). Don't forget the possibility of chickenpox. Stopping up of the sweat glands (hidrosis) will also produce little vesicles.

We will take up the other diseases of the hands tomorrow.

Questions and Answers

J. G.—Should flat-footed children wear a special kind of shoe?

Answer—Nearly all children are flat-footed to a certain extent. Whether any given child is so flatfooted as to need a special shoe should have to be determined by a physician.

A little over a century ago in the United States, footraces were held on city streets, with men on horseback riding ahead to open lanes. In 1835 $1,000 was offered in New York to any person who could run 20 miles in less than one hour.

Aesop, son of Clodius Aesopus dissolved in vinegar a pearl valued at $40,000, in order to have the satisfaction of drinking the most expensive drink ever known.

YOUNG KITTY!

Kitty Foyle starts bravely out on her career as a white-collar girl, in this portrait of Ginger Rogers as the heroine of Chris Morley's sensationally successful novel, brought to the screen of the New Liberty, Friday by RKO Radio. Miss Rogers' characterization in this, her latest screen role, covers a span of years from early youth to the middle twenties. Dennis Morgan and James Craig are co-starred as the rival men in her affections at this later period.

A sun-drenched desert city, Tucson, Arizona, is the colorful scene of Columbia's great motion picture spectacle, "Arizona," which opens Thursday at the Maryland theater with Jean Arthur starred and a supporting cast of thousands headed by William Holden, Warren William and Porter Hall.

The story of Tucson in 1860, when advancing civilization whipped into submission both the Indians and the bad men, when that very civilization brought into the far frontier the terrors and trials of a Civil war.

Miss Arthur is seen as Phoebe Titus, lone white woman in the Arizona territory, who dreams of the time when the land will be at peace, free from savage Indian raids and lawless frontier killers, and who courageously battles both to bring that day nearer.

William Holden appears to advantage as the casual, laughing young adventurer. Peter Muncie and others in the cast include Warren William, as a gambler-killer, and Porter Hall, as a renegade saloon-keeper.

"Arizona" was based upon Clarence Budington Kelland's stirring historical novel, adapted to the screen by Claude Binyon. For it, Columbia reconstructed in the Arizona desert an entire city, the city of Tucson as it appeared in 1860. The magnificence of the undertaking is more than compensated by the magnificent entertainment qualities of the production itself.

"Gone with the Wind" which has been attracting capacity crowds at the Maryland will end a seven day run tomorrow.

On the screen will be Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in the screaming comedy "The Devil's Pipeline."

Merry Dogpatchers Appear on Screen

"Li'l Abner" has come to life in the movies. Along with Daisy Mae, the gal who thinks he is just plain lovely but can't get him to make love, and all the other fantastic characters of fantastic Dogpatch, he steps right out of the funny-papers onto the motion picture screen of the New Liberty today.

The millions who grab the paper and turn first thing to "Li'l Abner's" daily adventures, probably never thought that the movies could ever duplicate those fantastic characters created by Artist Al Capp.

Miss Francis' screen character is based on the real life sweetheart of one of the Dalton boys.

While up to now, Kay has been identified with modern dramatic portrayals, she is particularly suited to the present action-filled role because she is a native of Oklahoma, the region where the Dalton boys have been duplicated in the flesh.

Li'l Abner himself, all six-foot-three of him, lives in the person of Granville Owen, who has the height and broad shoulders just as Capp drew him. He looks fully capable of performing all of Abner's feats of strength, and once was amateur heavyweight boxing champion of the Pacific coast.

Daisy Mae is the young and lovely Martha O'Driscoll. No make-up was needed for her, either, to equal Mr. Capp's pen. Make-up, of course, was called into play to produce pint-sized Pappy and Mammy, enacted by Johnnie Morris and Mona Ray, the mountainous Earthquake McGoon, portrayed by Charles A. Post, and Hairless Joe, whose heavy whiskers conceal the pleasant features of Bud Jamison.

And for Lonesome Polecat, the only Indian in Dogpatch, none other operated.

Also on the Garden's program is "I'm Nobody's Sweetheart Now," starring Dennis O'Keefe and Constance Moore.

Montgomery Plays Detective at Embassy

The Thin Man! Sherlock Holmes! Nick Carter! Now adventure with a brand new detective, who roars out or retirement when his bride finds a dead man in the cellar of their honeymoon cottage! The detective is Robert Montgomery, the bride is Constance Cummings, and the picture is "Haunted Honeymoon," opening on the Embassy screen.

Made in England as the first picture to be filmed there since the outbreak of war, "Haunted Honeymoon" follows upon such earlier M-G-M British-made successes as "A Yank at Oxford," "The Citadel" and "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Based on a best-seller novel by Dorothy L. Sayers, the picture gives Robert Montgomery a role in striking departure from the gangster-noblemen of his last success, "The Earl of Chicago." As Lord Peter Wimsey of "Haunted Honeymoon," he doesn't use a gun, nor does he talk out of the corner of his mouth. Instead, he is suave, sophisticated top-hat and tails man-about-town. But he is a bit of a dogpatcher.

Packing Issues Advance Slightly, But Leaders Generally Are Down

Market in a Rut for the Eighth Consecutive Session

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—For the eighth consecutive session the stock market today was unable to crawl out of the rut.

While packing companies issues and a handful of industrial favorites managed to finish on the rising side, leaders generally were down fractions to a point or so.

Offerings, however, were urgent. Transfers of 377,280 shares were the smallest for any five-hour proceedings since Oct. 23. They compared with 575,280 last Friday.

Big inventories of packing concerns, combined with rising meat prices, aided stocks in this group. Another upturn in this week's steel mill operations to a new record high for ingot production brought scant response from the metal shares.

Chrysler was a weak spot, dropping 1%. General Motors lost 1%. On the outside also were International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, American Smelting, N. Y. Central, Southern Railway, Allied Chemical, United Aircraft, Westinghouse and duPont.

Up as much as a point or more were Cudahy, Swift and Armour common and preferred. Clinging to modest gains also were General Electric, Air Reduction, American Gas, Eastman Kodak and Cheseapeake & Ohio.

In a spotty curb advances were held by N. J. Zinc, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Glen Alden Coal, Heyden Chemical and American Cyanamid "B." In arrears were Bell Aircraft, Gulf Oil, Panterec, Sunray Oil, Electric Bond and Aluminum of America. The turnover here was around 80,000 shares against 106,000 Friday.

ly result in their working for less money.

Jenkins' explanation for the ruling requiring the men to buy their own fuel was that "to many of the drivers had disregarded instructions to shut off motors of parked cars, which resulted in excessive waste of gasoline and increased operating expenses."

Went on Strike Saturday

Drivers walked off the job at noon Saturday in protest against the new regulation which committeemen said was tucked up without any advance notice and took them unaware. Committeemen said last night that thirty two of thirty six drivers had joined the union and that it was "practically 100 per cent since the rest would join too."

The taxi service, the city's largest suspended operations for three hours Saturday but returned to work at 3 p. m. on the advice of James A. Dundon, president of Local 1874 TWUA, acting in the absence of Robert Glenn, CIO organizer for the drivers union. Jenkins agreed to negotiate with the drivers this week when an effort to effect a satisfactory agreement will be made. The drivers resumed work under the former wage setup and regulations.

Seek Closed Shop

Committeemen said last night that they would ask for a closed shop. They explained that the purpose of holding two meetings today instead of one is to prevent the cab service from being interrupted.

Drivers returned to work when Dundon advised them that the proper method of settling the dispute was by negotiation. Committeemen said they were hopeful for a speedy settlement and were gratified by Jenkins' willingness to discuss the issues involved.

Eight Births Reported At Local Hospitals

A daughter was born yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith, of RFD 4, Christie road.

While a large number of women sewed for the war relief work last week, it is expected that this week's attendance will be even larger. Mrs. W. Carl White, general chairman said yesterday.

Arrangements for increased accommodations have been made and the work of arranging the room in the church has been taken over by the Girl Scout Service Bureau.

Volunteer needlewomen may put in the entire six hours or limit their activities to either morning or afternoon session. Hot coffee and tea are served at noon to go with the lunches brought by the volunteers.

Sheets are needed to make into bandages and donations from those who attend and others will be welcomed Wednesday morning at the church.

Wide Choice of Work

"It is our aim," said Steidling, "that every young person in Garrett and Allegany counties, capable of performing useful work, be given an opportunity to do so, and that through experience on an NYA project he may become qualified for full-time private employment." A wide choice of work is available to the boys and girls of this locality.

The work includes metal and wood-work, building construction, auto-mechanics, sewing, hospital service and library and clerical assistance. Each project is sponsored by a public agency and all work performed by NYA youth is public in character and outside the normal budget of the cooperating agency.

introduce it tomorrow night—and I won't tell you what it's about."

This last, so contrary to legislative custom, caught the State House press-room off guard; seldom is a legislator so secretive about his—or her—law-making. Under a new barrage of queries, Miss Doub mustered a tongue-in-cheek grin and added: "I don't think you'll like it."

Her departure left newsmen uncertain whether they were facing a new technique for directing attention to pending bills, or whether Delegate Doub actually was storing up a big surprise.

During the 1939 session—Miss Doub's first—she was identified with ten bills. Three—relating to Cumberland relief bonds and Midland gasoline taxes—passed; also passed was her joint resolution asking the governor to designate the second Monday in May as Mother's day.

She attempted to repeal the Declaration of Intentions act but her bill died in the Elections committee. This year, a similar bill has been sponsored by the legislative council.

A balance of $117,918.46 was shown in the quarterly financial report of the City of Cumberland for the period ending December 31, according to figures submitted yesterday to the mayor and council by Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor.

The mayor and council granted $150 to the Associated Charities for the purchase of coal for the needy and an unnamed street in the rear of Piedmont avenue was named Zihlman Way.

John Blough was given permission to tap the city sewer for a home to be built on Piedmont avenue just outside the city limits provided he paid $65 in fees while the application of C. W. Sirbaugh for a permit to install a 500-gallon gasoline tank at 14 Elder street was referred to the police and fire chiefs and city engineer.

Ann Schellhaus Is Improving

Ann Schellhaus, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schellhaus, Willowbrook road, who was seriously injured Sunday in a coasting accident near her home, was reported slightly improved last night at Allegany hospital.

No Comment Locally

Neither Fred T. Small, plant manager, or James A. Dundon, president of Local 1874, commented last night on the arbitrator's decision which is binding. Small did not comment on the recommendation of the arbitrator as yet.

Prof. Taylor set forth his findings on the two cases in a thirteen-page closely type-written report.

In commenting on his recommendation that Gambino be rehired in another department in the interests of employer-employee relations, Taylor said, "although the jurisdiction of the arbitrator technically does not extend beyond the above determination, fairness dictates a recognition of Gambino's generally good record as a workman. The arbitrator believes that the present experience might readily be a turning point in Gambino's career and that there is a real possibility that his services can be used in other capacities."

Sound Morale Needed

Gibson dwelt briefly but eloquently upon the things for which America stands and pointed out that a sound morale rather than material resources is the chief thing for present consideration. The democratic spirit, which did not have its source in the Bill of Rights, the constitution or the courts of justice bit, rather was the source of those great safeguards of liberty.

Dr. Hawkins presided as toastmaster and introduced Arthur B. Gibson after referring to the presidential inaugural in Washington with the reminder that, regardless of politics, patriotism is now the order of the day.

Allegany Captures Twin Bill from Central

Lonaconing Girls Upset 24-20 while Boys Lose 21 to 19

A.H.S. Sextet Snaps 31-Game Win Streak in Copping Lidlifter

Donald McIntyre Hero as Boys Win Thriller with Late Rally

One upset was recorded in the W.M.I. Basketball League last night and another was in the making until a slightly-favored team came to life in the late stages and turned what looked like certain defeat into a glorious victory.

The Central High girls' outfit of Lonaconing had a 32-game winning streak snapped on the Allegany High court when Coach Kathleen Roberts' Blue and White sextet surprised the Orange and Black by a 24-20 count, while in the nightcap Mel "Next" Henry's boys' aggregation dropped a 21-19 thriller to Mentor Bill Bowers' crew after setting the pace for more than three periods.

An estimated crowd of 500 saw the Blue and White lassies, paced by Marion Wintermyer and Ruth Fradiska, break on top and hold the lead through most of the contest, being ahead 6-4, 10-8, and 20-15 at the quarters.

Wintermyer pulled the game out of the fire for the Allegany team in the last four minutes after the Coney sextet had pulled within a point of the locals at 20-19 by looping two straight doubledeakers, the Blue and Whites' only scores of the stanza.

Fradiska Top Scorer

Fradiska was leading scorer for the winners with 13 markers on four twin-counters and five foul shots, while Wintermyer accounted for nine tallies on the same number of goals and one free throw.

Mary Jo Muster was the whole show for the losers with six field goals, four of which were made in the first half. June Merribach was runnerup with two fielders and a brace of fouls. Central bagged eight baskets to nine for the Campers but converted only four of 15 gift tosses to six of 10 for Allegany.

The loss was the first for Central since it dropped a close decision to Cambridge in a post-season game in 1939.

McIntyre Hero in Nightcap

Allegany's Center Donald McIntyre was the hero in the afterpiece. The rangy Blue and White pivot man, after going scoreless for three frames, broke loose in the final heat and scored four straight buckets to lift the Campers from a 17-13 deficit to a 21-17 lead.

McIntyre's third basket, which put Allegany in front by a 19-17 count, marked the first time in the game that the West Siders were on top. With the exception of a 6-6 tie at the end of the first quarter and a 17-17 deadlock on McIntyre's second doubledecker of the frame, the Bowersmen were always on the short end of the score. Central held a one-point lead at halftime (10-9) and was on top by six points at 17-11 at the end of the third session.

The Lonaconing outfit outgained the bigger portion of the battle, which was a thriller from start to finish, but couldn't stop Allegany's fast one-man finish.

Allegany's Shooting Off

The Blue and White was definitely off in its shooting, the majority of its pitches in the early stages failing to hit the basket, and the passing was far from impressive.

Ken Sherman and Milton Athey never hit their stride at any stage of the tussle and it was only through Bill "Jesse" James' fine floor work, that the West Siders were able to stay within a safe distance of the Coneysites.

The rest, as they say, is history, and now the fee for that good right arm is $30,000. Mr. Feller's control is getting so good that he can control even his foot on the gas-pedal of his automobile, with the result that the traffic constables are nicking him for less and less. His deportment is excellent, which means he will never share the fate of his catcher, Roller Hensley, who used to call it a good year when he broke even with his employers, what with fines, etc.

Central Takes Lead

Getty put the invaders in front shortly after the game got underway with a set pitch and followed a little later with a long toss to make the score 4-0. Central, James tallied a singleton for the Campers, Maine followed with a twin-counter for the Orange and Black, and James slipped in three straight markers to make the count 6-4 with a minute to go. Sherman's flipper from the side knotted the figures at 6-all as the period ended.

The first four minutes of the second heat were featured by close guarding and savage play under the hoops. Getty intercepted an Allegany pass and dribbled the length of the floor for the first score of the period midway in the heat and Sherman pocketed one of two charity throws to make the score 8-7.

McIntyre scored on a goal from the side and James counted with a rimmed basket to bring the score to 10-9 at halftime.

Bob Feller May Become Highest-Paid Pitcher

Michigan U. Coach Believes Pirates Will Get Returns

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 20—Robin Feller, the world's most rapid pitcher, is on his way to becoming the world's richest as well. Over and above what the government takes away from him in taxes and the traffic cops take away from him in fines, Robin will manage to make ends meet for several years to come.

Wealth has come to this apple-cheeked urchin at the age of 22, when most college graduates of the same age are groveling in squalor in the bond business, at $1,500 per annum. It shows what can be done by throwing a baseball at a target six hours a day in your formative years.

If Mr. Feller gets $30,000 in salary for 1941—and he may—he will be the highest-paid pitcher in baseball history. I have a letter from Red Ehret, star pitcher with Louisville in the 1880's, recalling one season when his pay was cut from $1,300 to $1,100. Ball players were slaves then, and they are slaves today, but it's a cosy kind of slavery now, if you like money.

Two Got $27,500

Most of the boys speak of Lefty Grove's $27,500 as the previous high for pitchers. They forget Dizzy Vance, the hulking idol of Brooklyn, who achieved the same figure one year.

Hurt Arm Early

Gee said in Early workout at his best season, Walter Johnson crept over $20,000 late in his career, or so some of his Washington colleagues testify. All these fellows were noted for their speed, which seems to indicate that the fireball is the key to the safe. Mr. Feller is the fastest pitcher since Johnson. No other ball player, George H. Ruth included, ever earned a wage of $30,000 as early as his twenty-third year. At this rate, there is no telling how high rapid Robin may soar. Ruth's all-time record of $80,000 is probably out of his reach, because Feller, after all, cannot attract customers to the ball park more than a couple of times a week. But Robin is likely to pass five games, last season, also starting five doubledeakers.

In placing myself entirely under Fisher's directions," Gee said, "Hell do the pacing and I'll do the pitching. He taught me all I know and he's the one who can straighten me out."

Gee, who came up to Pittsburgh with a record of 20 victories with Syracuse of the International League in 1939, jumped an order to report to Albany of the Eastern League last summer and instead went to Fisher's Summer home with Pittsburgh.

Gee, who came up to Pittsburgh with a record of 20 victories with Syracuse of the International League in 1939, jumped an order to report to Albany of the Eastern League last summer and instead went to Fisher's Summer home with Pittsburgh.

"I think that affair is ironed out now," Gee declared.

At Michigan Gee was primarily a basketball player but Fisher, a tennis fury for the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds, induced him to try baseball.

Lou Gehrig's top salary, $39,000, was the highest paid to a mere ball player in recent years. Jim Cronin gets more, but Joe is a manager on the side — no matter what some of the Red Sox fans tell you.

Connie Mack Gave Cobb $60,000

Roger Hornby went over $40,000 one season. In the twilight of their playing lives, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker went very high indeed. Thinking of their value at the box office, Connie Mack acquired Tyron and Tristram when they were practically washed up and carried them with his Athletics at enormous salaries. Cobb got $60,000 from old Mr. McGillicuddy one year, and Speaker only a little less.

Above those brackets, there is only Ruth, and there always will be only Ruth.

It's a far shout from 1941, and $30,000, to the humble origins of Mr. Feller's baseball career, back in 1936. He was on the Cleveland payroll then, but his job was selling peanuts in the ball park, and on these sales he did not get one cent a bag. The Indians gave him a sneak preview against the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game. He struck out eight of the first nine times.

In the girls' preliminary the local girls won by a 26-15 score.

Len Barnum Seeks Parkersburg Post

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 20.—Leonard "Feets" Barnum, recently traded by the New York Giants to the Pittsburgh Steelers, told tonight he would continue his professional career this fall providing he was unable to land a coaching job at Parkersburg High.

Barnum said he had received a contract from the Steelers, but had not signed it pending his hunt for the scholastic coaching post.

"I would like the change from New York to Pittsburgh," he said, "because I'd get a chance to play with Greasy Neale."

Neale, also a native of Parkersburg, is the new head coach of the Pittsburgh team.

FRIENDSVILLE, Md., Jan. 20—Advocates of organized baseball for Altoona now are turning to the city school board to petition an arrangement whereby its athletic field may be used for an Altoona entry in the Penn State Association.

The new move was outlined after conferences with city and WPA officials in the office of Mayor Charles E. Rhodes. Consideration of the Pennsylvania Railroad, as a site for the Friendsville teams, Coach "Pat" Rice will send the following boys into the game as his starting line-up. J. Pike and R. Pike forwards; W. Nicklow center; B. Savage and W. Thomas guards. The following girls will receive first call for the game from coach First Storey, M. Weaver, G. Glenn and J. Rush forwards; B. Thomas, L. Frazer and B. Coddington guards.

Dom DiMaggio Has Everything But Looks of Player

Michigan U. Coach Believes Pirates Will Get Returns

CHICAGO, Jan. 18—He does not talk much but how he can throw. He wears very heavy-lensed spectacles, but how he can hit. He is rather short, but how he can cover ground. In fact, Dominic DiMaggio, youngest of the three DiMaggio brothers playing in the major leagues, looks far more like a school teacher than a ball player, but they do not pay off on looks in baseball. If they did Dominic might be playing Class D instead of with the Boston Red Sox in the American League.

There are six clubs in the American League that claim they have the best fielding center fielder in the circuit, but it is extremely doubtful if Joe DiMaggio, Roy Weatherly, Barney McCosky, Mike Kerecich or Walter Judich have anything on Dominic, who, by the way, will not be 23 years of age until February.

Dominic has a rifle arm just like his two brothers, Joe and Vince, but he is believed to be better on ground balls than Joe. Like Tris Speaker, who years ago, set the high standard for center fielders, Dominic plays a shorter field than any of the other stars for the reason he has the speed to pull down the long drives if he has to go back. He prefers to play in close for he has figured that with his ability to play grounders like an infielder, he can grab a base runner hit and prevent a base runner from running from second base. That's why Dominic had sixteen assists in ninety-five games, last season, also starting five doubledeakers.

Boxing Doing Alright Without Joe Louis

In Other Bouts Have Hit New Highs in New York Garden

Winter Season Far Ahead of Last Year in Attendance

Bomber Makes His Bow in Bout with Burman Next Week

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Boxing has climbed off Joe Louis' back and is getting along very nicely on its own this winter.

The gentle art of bashing beaks still boasting the biggest indoor season in four years at Madison Square Garden, despite the fact that Brown Bomber, whose drawing power usually supports the not-so-important attractions in a campaign, won't make his seasonal debut in the big Eighth Avenue sports circle until he meets Red Burman a week from Friday.

Drawing Elsewhere

At the same time, reports coming in show the sport of give-and-take also is on the upswing in such places as Boston, where Louis and Al McCoy drew a gross gate of $46,980 last month; Cleveland, where the Anton Cristoforidis-Melio Bettina light-heavyweight tussle played to a $20,000 house and drew 12,000 fans in December; and Philadelphia, where a bantam-weight title scrap between Lou Salica and Tommy Forte had more than $16,000 in the house a week ago.

When Promoter Mike Jacobs sat back and smiled his pleasure at the 23,190 fans who set an all-time attendance high for the Garden to see Fritzie Zivic finish Henry Armstrong last Friday night, he saw two reasons for the return of the old good old days.

Thanks Defense Plan

"We're getting better attractions generally," he explained. "Fellows like Zivic and Steve Bellou have come along this season to make it look good again for the Armstrongs and the Ken Overlins, and, as a result, it's interesting for the fight fan. Then, too, there's more fresh money around, although the full budget of the expense program hasn't been set yet."

Including last Friday, the Garden has drawn 185,895 customers through the turnstiles in 13 fights since the indoor season began for total gross gates of $488,464. This far down to an average of 14,300 fans and $37,574 per fight.

The two pre-Christmas shows, featuring Zivic and Lew Jenkins December 20, and the Overlin-Bellou return match December 13, traced a total of $93,357. A year ago, the corresponding cards grossed only $45,000.

Several Cases Are Disposed of in Circuit Court

Guilty Pleas and Suspended Sentences Are Feature of Proceedings

The January term criminal docket was almost cleaned up in a single day yesterday with a majority of traversers indicted by the grand jury pleading guilty as charged.

Cases yet to be disposed of include that of Theodore Wilson Swanger, Twiggton, indicted for manslaughter in the death of Russell P. Lashbaugh, 16, of Mt. Savage, a hiker, who was fatally injured last November 14 near Zihlman, and that of Anthony Noye, 24, Elizabeth, N. J., charged with breaking and entering.

Charles F. Stiner, Cumberland high school boy indicted twelve times on burglary charges, yesterday pleaded guilty as charged. He was ordered to appear in court Saturday when his case will be disposed of.

Youths Plead Guilty

Three other youths implicated with Stiner also pleaded guilty and were given five year suspended sentences and placed in the custody of the Rev. George E. Baughman. The boys were also instructed by the court that they were not to enter poolrooms, saloons or clubs where intoxicants are sold. The three youths are Donald William Kalbaugh, Carl Scharf and Charles William McDermott, the latter being placed in the custody of the Rev. Father Mountain.

In another case Spargan B. Washington was found guilty of the malicious destruction of property and was given a three months suspended sentence and ordered to make restitution for damage he caused.

Must Pay Balance

According to testimony Washington smashed furniture he had purchased on the installment plan with a wrench when the firm removed it from his home. Payments on the furniture had been completed except for $37.50 and the court ordered him to pay the furniture company $7 each payday until it is paid for.

Alumni Concert Orchestra Holds Last Rehearsal

Holtz Hopeful of Large Turnout for Initial Program Tomorrow Night

Twenty-two musicians comprising the personnel of the Cumberland Alumni Concert Orchestra last evening participated in their final tune-up in preparation for their first public concert of the year tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Allegany high school auditorium.

The orchestra, with Milton A. Holtz as its conductor, has shown marked improvement in recent weeks and now is prepared for its first real test on a program comprising eight classical and semi-classical selections.

Conductor Holtz yesterday said that he is hopeful that there will be a large turnout for the orchestra's initial effort. Tomorrow's concert will mark Holtz's debut as conductor, he having succeeded Victor Baumann, leader of the musical organization last year.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained at the Music Shop or from orchestra and rotary club members.

CONDUCTOR

—When the Cumberland Alumni Concert Orchestra, sponsored by the Rotary club, presents its initial concert of the year tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. at the Allegany high school auditorium, Milton Arnold Holtz will fill the role of conductor. Holtz, a member of the Fort Hill high school faculty, succeeds Victor Baumann, who served as conductor last year.

The new leader hails from Elgin, Ill., where he was graduated from Elgin high school. He also attended Illinois State Normal University, Normal, Ill.

Holtz also directs Fort Hill high school's band and orchestra.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained at the Music Shop or from orchestra and rotary club members.

Police Hunt Man Who Attempted Hold-up Here

Fair Directors Are Re-Elected

1940 Officers Are Retained at Annual Meeting of Local Association

Stockholders of the Cumberland Fair Association, Inc., at their annual meeting yesterday at the chamber of commerce office, re-elected the fifteen directors who served last year and the directors in turn renamed the 1940 officers.

Officers said they were not notified of the attempted hold-up until yesterday at 1 a. m. when the force changed shifts, at which time Officer B. B. Brown reported the incident to Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber.

Pulled Gun on Attendants

According to Walter Jewell, night manager of the station, a man traveling toward South Cumberland in a tan coupe pulled into the station about 5:45 o'clock and stopped on the right hand side of the pumps. The stranger remained in the car and kept his window up, he added.

Jewell said the man pointed a gun at him when he went to the window to ask what will it be?

"Give me everything you've got," he quoted the armed man as saying.

Jewell reported he jumped behind a pump when he saw the gun and the driver stepped on the gas. He told police he was unable to get the license number on the car because the rear plate was turned up.

Wore Tax Overcoat

The racing committee comprising F. Brooks Whiting, chairman; J. Glenn Beall, William H. Robertson, P. J. Arendes, Fred T. Small and Edward J. Brennan, racing secretary, was reappointed.

Samuel Bruce Suffers Fractured Skull when Struck by Pole

The victim, Samuel Bruce, of Washington, D. C., was unconscious when admitted to Allegany hospital at 4:15 o'clock with a compound skull fracture, a broken right arm and severe bruising about the forehead and head.

VACANCIES EXIST IN AIR CORPS TECHNICAL SCHOOL

Changes Are Made In Salvation Army Kindergartens Here

A change has been made in both kindergartens conducted by the Salvation Army. Brigadier B. L. Phillips has announced.

Beginning yesterday the kindergarten at the Citadel on North Mechanic street will be held each school day from 1 to 3:30 p. m.

The kindergarten in the Army hall in South Cumberland will be held at the usual hour from 1:30 to 4 p. m. Miss Mary Leasure of this city will be the new teacher.

Mrs. Sarah Gwynn of Gilmore has been appointed teacher at the Citadel kindergarten, by Mrs. Elizabeth Cooper, county supervisor for the WPA recreational project.

Mrs. Gwynn will also conduct craft classes for girls from 3:30 to 5 and 6 to 8 p. m. These classes are for all girls from 8 to 18 who wish to learn how to do various kinds of craft work.

Brigadier Phillips said there are about twenty children enrolled in each school, and that any child between the ages of 4 and 6 years is eligible for the school.

This vocational education, considered to be the finest obtainable, is not only free, but students are paid $21 a month plus living expenses and clothing, and pay increases are rapid.

Committeemen said Jenkins had announced that drivers would receive a seven per cent increase boosting the drivers' quota to forty per cent on the dollar. At the same time, committee men stated, they would be required to buy gasoline for their cars.

Previous to the present expansion program the maximum output of trained specialists never exceeded

900 men a year, but in 1941 over

2,500 technicians a month will be trained at Chanute Field. Courses in the curriculum include airplane mechanics, aircraft welding, machinery, aircraft metal working carburetion, instrument propeller, electrical, parachute riggers, weather observers, and Link-Trainer specialists.

When the need for great numbers of Air Corps technicians has passed, the skilled men will become available to private aircraft industry.

Work On Commission

With the cab drivers working on a commission basis, committee men explained that the necessity of their buying gasoline to run the cars would more than eat up the increase offered and would actually

be required to buy gasoline for the cars.

Organize CIO Union

According to Marsh, John Shepherd and R. Clark, committee men, all members of the newly organized local of the CIO transportation union will have an opportunity to comment on the proposed contract before it is submitted to Jenkins.

Employees of the cab company numbering thirty-six men organized Saturday in protest against a new regulation of the firm requiring them to
